

Watashi-Wa, Ten Years And Separating States

They're still building roads in themselves
And we can see them all if we start driving now
And we'll do all our thinking out loud
And wait for daylight

Was it a dream we were out at a lake
After ten years and separating states
To drain your blood of the poison
Wait for daylight

It's getting close now
Well I felt the daylight
And it left me wanting more
Get me out of this empty town
I feel it changing me

There's a place off of safety in mind
We spoke of shinobi one night
And it got us to think about living our lives for what's right
To take all the things we know
Run without letting them go
And do all our thinking out loud
And wait for daylight

It's getting close now
Well I felt the daylight
It left me wanting more
Get me out of this empty town
And back to the ground
Well I felt that daylight
It broke down walls inside
And get me out of this broken town
Cause I feel it change
Daylight found you here
Drain your blood
And fill your arms with it

I felt that daylight
It left me wanting more
Get me out of this empty town
And back to the ground
Well I felt that daylight it broke down
It's breaking my walls down
It's draining my blood out
