

We Are The Fury, Still Don't Know Your Name

i met you in the bar then i took you to my car turned on the radio you took me to the stars i still don't know your name we stood up and parted like criminals flee a scene took it all for granted like it happened in a dream

i still don't know your name so don't tell me that you don't know how to rock 'n roll you said that it's your first time but you really seem to know how it goes with all your will you put the other girls to shame and i still don't know your name the other night i saw you dancing at the club we pretended to ignore each other i pretended that i was in love

i still don't know your name

don't tell me that you don't know how to rock 'n roll

you said that it's your first time but you really seem to know how it goes
with all your will you put the other girls to shame
and i still don't know your name

don't you know? don't you, don't you... she's all right, ...

it would be nice to try and finally meet you aside from being the guy who tries to complete you.

so what am i to do?
all i see is your pretty face i see it every minute as i walk amongst the human race
i still don't know your name

don't tell me that you don't know how to rock 'n roll
you said that it's your first time but you really seem to know how it goes
with all your will you put the other girls to shame
and i still don't know your name