

We The Living, Atlantic

I cannot see you
Over and under and
I cannot make you out through the crowd
I searched the whole world to find you and Never once did I wonder should I
Should I tell you I love you
Should I tell you out loud

I crossed the Atlantic
I crossed the Emerald Isles
Without a single doubt
About the day you're mine
But all that I came to find
Was I never crossed your mind

Never before and never again
Are you and I bound to find
A love like this again

I want to show you the sunrise
Off the coast of Japan
I want to, I want to tell you about me
Let you know who I am
But you don't care, You don't care

I crossed the Atlantic
I crossed the Emerald Isles
Without a single doubt about the day you're mine
And all that I came to find
Was I never crossed your mind
No I never crossed your mind, Yeah

This world is too wide
For you to be lonely
You to be lonely
I'm wide open to just, me and you only
Me and you only

I crossed the Atlantic
I crossed the Emerald Isles
Without a single doubt about the day you're mine
And all that I came to find
Was I never crossed your mind
No I never crossed your mind

I crossed the Atlantic
But all I came to find was I never crossed your mind
