

Wester, Apologies

You're far too late to change your ways
There's no turning back what you have engaged
You can't save yourself this time...
There is no turning back this time

Your ignorance has buried you
So far down now you can't find a way out
So just settle yourself in...
And wait for it all to begin

Lost and confused just like the rest
But I'm afraid you have failed your test
You're not even close to what you think you are
Your arrogance has made you stray so far

So once again tell me a lie
That betrays everything you know
But don't expect to apologize
For it will not matter in my eyes
You try to take back all those words
Those words that bring a tear to my eye
But these tears are not because of you
These tears are for you...these tears are for you