Westworld, Ice Queen

Time to leave the dead behind Shed the weight suppressing me A dark beautiful, naked life at the edge of the sea

Towards the sky I have been drawn But alone, too scared to fly Underneath her wings I was safe till the tears ran dry

I've got a soul that she could not seem to reach She'll never know how I feel Brought down the wall to her face I couldn't speak I'll never touch her that way again

Cold up inside my body numb in my mind, somebody wake me! Make me believe in love again now that I'm free from the ice queen

Her shoulder turned to let me fall The sirens wailed as she slid away In my head the demons came out to enjoy the day

She's got a soul that I just can't seem to reach I'll never know how she feels Up in her castle with the Empire at her feet Shes rules her world, but not with me

Cold up inside my body numb in my mind, somebody wake me! Make me believe in love again now that I'm free from the ice queen
