What do you live for everyday? But you ask the question
Just keeping it simple I heard you say, was it there in your mind

The fire in the flames will burn you all the same
But in the light of the present day.
It's time to make a change
It's time to win the game...

But the light went out today
When you need it more than anyone
Did you have to walk away?
Did you have to give it up again?
I only hope that you find a way on some other plane...

Walking on water in the rain, passing the time away
But the sun's shining through your backdoor
So seize the day

And chase your feelings away
And live for a brighter day
It was a pleasure on your day with pleasure comes the pain
It will never be the same

But the light went out today
When you need it more than anyone
Did you have to walk away?
Do you have to give it up again?
So what is it gonna take?
To bring you back home
I only hope that you find a way on some other plane

Falling out again, holding on forever
I see it in your eyes, alone and complacent
Leaving you behind
It's only what you make it, it gives you what you find
First class incineration, will burn you in time
Only if you let it, it's always on your mind
Not like the first time, never the last
Keeps on getting better, always on the fire
It's always on your mind
It's always on your mind
It's always on your mind...
