

Whiskeytown, Kiss & Make Up

Well I can't sleep for dreaming of my baby at night
I've been trying to forget her, but I can't help but remember her
I got the skies and the sweet southern pines to confide in
I've been running for so long, as I might as well just been hiding
Well, I just can't see love as something to be afraid of
But then again, it's merely your kiss and make-up

I was living in the city with a girl that was pretty and was fine
I had a rock and roll band and guitar stand in mind
Sometimes the lines ran into the dozens at night
Until I ended up arrested for the liquor I invested in
Well I just can't see love as something to be afraid of
But then again, it's merely your kiss and make-up

□

Well I can't sleep for dreaming of my baby at night
I've been trying to forget her, but I can't help but remember her
I got the skies and the sweet southern pines to confide in
I've been running for so long, I might as well just been hiding
Well, I just can't see love as something to be afraid of
But then again, it's merely your kiss and make-up
Well, I just can't see love as something to be afraid of
But that ain't what the rest of the world got made of