Wilco, Alone

Shakin' sugar from a sugar spoon Peppermint tea afternoon Alone, alone, alone

Taking a shower take another nap Watching television take a bath Alone, alone, alone

Feel like a book, but I just cant start it Feel like a lover, brokenhearted Look in the mirror at the face in the glass Look like a question no one ever asks

Alone Like I'm supposed to be Lone lonely alone Like I'm supposed to be

Go for a walk, go for a drive Listen to the stereo stay inside Alone, alone, alone

Feel like a book, but I just cant start it Feel like a lover, brokenhearted Look in the mirror at the face in the glass Look like a question no one ever asks

Alone Like I'm supposed to be Lone lonely alone Like I'm supposed to be

Shakin' sugar from a tablespoon bitter black coffee underneath the moon Alone, alone, alone

Feel like a book with a big ghost heart I didn't finish, I didn't start it Look in the mirror at the face in the glass Look like a question no one ever asks

Alone Like I'm supposed to be Lone lonely alone Like I'm supposed to be
