Without A Cross, The Nightmare

It started as a dream, and then the nightmare took it's toll

I was taught all the answers lie in the light My dreams are all as black as night What lies in the light may not lie in the dark My dreams have been torn apart

So open up the door and see what's behind All the dreams and answers and all the lies Stricken like a needle in the vein unreal Taken from my mind it's all too real

It all was a motive to reemphasize
Taken from my world and reenergize
Bliss I seek was too far a dream
Cause in this world we seldom scream

Take away my sunshine You live in a world struck with divine Leave my peace in a shelf up high Or take my motion and DIE!!!