

Wondermints, She Opens Heaven's Door

(N. Walusko)

She opened heaven's door and let me come inside.

Imagine all you want and all you need to find.

But wanting something changes fast

the thing you want,

So let's pretend it wasn't there for you to count.

A flower opens heaven's door - in her.

And now I tasted something more - with her.

It's good to know a smile can spread in many ways,

And like a sugar crystal, melted, candies glaze.

When heaven's so much closer than a falling star,

You go, and there you find one - there - it's not too far.

A flower opens heaven's door - in her.

And now I tasted something more - with her.

A flower opens heaven's door - in her.

And now I tasted something more - with her.

And love can move us in the lights of life that glow,

Like fireflies in coruscating dances slow.

Just when you talk, you stop and think another way.

It's over there beyond a ledge of knolls, they say.

Ah la la la
