

Yellow Second, Sun Regrets Shining

so different when
across the lake
blue green eyed hour
caught us in the wake
i hope she feels the
way that i do
i rippled when
to me she spoke
and rode the wave
even as it broke
i'm riding still
i hope forever
the sun will regret shining
i won't forget
but will you?
do you believe in us still can we see this thing through?
arrest my fears
and be content
its taken years
but its time well spent and it means more than you imagine long way to go before we're done
and you should know
more than anyone
that i am always thinking of you and there's time for answers right or wrong
thanks for standing by me
for so long