Zakk Wylde, Just Killing Time

I sit reflecting
I feel the end has begun
It seems my days now mirror the setting sun
So many places that I have been
This ride that was long seems so short in terms of now and then

For All that has been And All that is All that's to be Lord, I'm just killing time And time's killing me

Dead man breathing, just taking up space Calloused and weathered like the lines on one's face Dead man breathing, my conscience is bare The lining of my soul is torn yet I no longer care

For All that has been And All that is All that's to be Lord, I'm just killing time