

Zara Larsson, Don't Let Me Be Yours

I may know myself
But I realize that I can't be late astray
I know, I know
That you're bad for my health
But I don't care
I want you anyway

Boy, you think that you know me
But you can't see my lonely heart
Things look different in the morning
That's when we find out who we are
Would you still want me
Without no makeup on my face?
Without alcohol in my veins?

Would you, baby?
Would you still love me?
With all the promises you made
Would you still mean the words you say?
Would you, baby?

You know everybody makes mistake
Don't let me be yours
You know everybody makes mistake
Don't let me be yours
No, don't let me be

You may look like hell when it's 6 a.m.
But it's heaven in this bed
I know, I know I know
That you can tell
That we're more than friends
And it's not just in our heads

Boy, you think that you know me
But you can't see my lonely heart
Things look different in the morning
That's when we find out who we are
Would you still want me
Without no makeup on my face?
Without alcohol in my veins?

Would you, baby?
Would you still love me?
With all the promises you made
Would you still mean the words you say?
Would you, baby?

You know everybody makes mistake
Don't let me be yours
You know everybody makes mistake
Don't let me be yours
No, don't let me be
