

Zero Procent, Before you start

I

Before you start talking please think again
Has this conversation any sense
Our memories from the past have just gone away
And they won't back here cause they expired like a flame

Chorus

You think you always have everything what you want
And fault for all your failures was always only mine
But I promise you that end is getting close
Forget all our days, I don't want to remember those

II

Before you start that your silly and tricky game
Remember that you won't treat me again
Now I'm smarter and I really know who you are
I want you to leave my life and go away so far